5 ABOVE ZERO IS RECORDED

Snow, Cold Winds Chill Ohioans After Milder Weather

A high, cold wind whipped over Ohio today, sending temperatures to near-zero over most of the state. Some localities reported below-zero readings last night.

Five above zero was the low in Salem during the night, a drop of 20 degrees from the midnight reading at the city sewage treatment plant.

A drifted snowfall was evident this morning after a blinding snowstorm had raged off and on during the night. Driving conditions were hazardous last night because of the wind-whipped snow, the state highway patrol reported.

The state highway department said from one to three inches of snow covered many Ohio roads and reported considerable drifting in northern Ohio. Streets in towns and cities were slippery.

Washington Court House reported a temperature drop from 57 degrees yesterday to 4 below early this morning in an 18-hour period.

Toledo's low was listed at 3 above, Columbus and Akron 5 each, Cincinnati and Cleveland 6 each.

Mostly cloudy, windy and very cold today and tonight, with continued cold tomorrow, was the official forecast.

The body of Joseph Brady, 52, was found today along the Miami river near Hamilton. Dr. Harry Duibel, acting Butler county coroner, said Brady had frozen to death, a victim of last night's near-zero weather.

QUICK END OF STEEL STRIKE IS FORESEEN

Dewey Calls GM President, CIO Leader Into Conference

(By Associated Press) Quick settlement of the nation's two major strikes—in steel and automobile production—appeared as a possibility today following announcement of President Truman's new and higher wage-price policy.

These were the developments: 1—Special Federation Mediator James F. Dewey announced in Detroit he had arranged a meeting this afternoon between President C. E. Wilson of General Motors and President R. J. Thomas of the CIO United Auto Workers.

2—A White House spokesman said promulgation of the new policy permitting price boosts to cover approved wage hikes cleared the way for ending the costly 26-day strike of 750,000 Steelworkers and official Washington looked for a settlement today.

Green Attacks Program Meanwhile, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, described the administration's new policy as "unsatisfactory, unacceptable and a backward step" and contended it establishes government wage fixing and "strikes a body blow at free collective bargaining."

CIO President Philip Murray made no immediate comment. The United Mine Workers Journal said Mr. Truman would have "done well to accept the admonition" of John L. Lewis that "free enterprise and free collective bargaining constituted the answer to the President's many varied problems."

In the General Motors conference, Wilson's participation will mark his first appearance in sessions looking to the end of the 87-day old strike of 173,000 GM production workers.

The union also will be represented in the session by Vice President Walter P. Reuther and Secretary-Treasurer George Addes and their staff, Dewey said.

Government Hopeful A quick end of the steel wage dispute was the immediate hope of government officials as a result of the new formula, which provides price increases for industry to government approved wage raises.

High officials said settlement of the strike was possible on the basis of an 18 cents hourly wage hike as previously recommended by Mr. Truman. Another factor, they said, would be a $5 a ton increase in the price of steel.

As Mr. Truman announced his new policy last night officials of the U. S. steel industry and the CIO United Steelworkers were reported close to agreement on the wage issue. One point reportedly under discussion was the date the wage increase to the 750,000 strikers should become effective.

Parent-Teacher Group Hears Training Debate The Salem High school debate team presented a discussion on "Compulsory Military Training" when the High school Parent-Teacher association met last evening at the school building.

The affirmative team included Joanne Whinnery and Duane Yeagley, and Nettie Howard and Velma O'Neil comprised the negative. The group was in charge of Lucy Huston.

Following an open discussion, a vote was taken among the audience, showing that the majority approved military training. Lunch was served by a committee including Mrs. L. W. King, Mrs. Nat Walker, Mrs. Carl Gartner and Mrs. Eric Eytan.

The next meeting will be held March 12.

Draft Boards To Comb 4-F Lists For Army Inductees

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Selective Service headquarters today directed local boards to comb their lists of 4-F's and other deferred classes to get men for limited military service.

The action was taken at the request of the army which lowered its physical standards for draftees to an "absolute minimum" and called on Selective Service to meet its full quotas and make up an accumulated deficit of 75,000 men.

Selective Service officials said that through state headquarters, the local boards "were directed specifically to review: 1. The records of men classified as 4-F or previously rejected for military service; 2. Class 2-AL men who if not deferred because of their occupation would be class 4-F; and class 2-CL farm workers who otherwise would be class 4-F."

These are included in an overall pool of men between 18 and 25 inclusive who for various reasons had been turned down for the draft.

Effective in April Officials said quotas might be increased for March, but the main effect of the army's increase demands would be felt in April when the draft has been asked to provide 125,000 instead of the current monthly quota of 50,000.

The War department said it hoped to obtain 250,000 men through the draft during the first five months of this year.

Selective service officials said they believed the demand could be met from a pool of men who had been rated as qualified for limited service but previously turned down by the army. These men are among approximately 1,250,000 between 18 and 25, most of whom had been classified 4-F for physical or mental reasons.

Men with "mental deficiencies, mild in degree," men with certain types of hernia and those who stammer or stutter will be taken under the lowered standards, which the War department termed "the absolute minimum requirements for any type of military service."

Selective Service previously has been supplying only approximately 35,000 of the army's monthly quota of 50,000 men.

STERN WAGE RULES FIXED

Controls On Price Program Are Designed To Curb Inflation

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—American industry will get speedier price help under the government's new stabilization formula, but it imposes stern wage controls in an effort to head off inflation.

The revised wage-price policy provides that in general pay hikes must be federally approved if they are to qualify as a basis for offsetting price increases.

The formula also stipulates that, in order to win approval, wage or salary boosts must be within the general pattern established in individual industries or local areas since the end of the war.

In many cases these increases have ranged from around 15 to 18 per cent.

Limit Is Set To the worker, all this means that collective bargaining will go on pretty much as usual, but there will be a top limit on how much more pay he can hope to get — in most cases within this 15 to 18 per cent range.

As for industry, heretofore only a small part of such pay increases could be used as the basis for asking immediate price relief. Companies had to wait six months before applying for higher prices to offset the lion's share of any major wage jump.

Now the six-month wait is out. If OPA finds that a pay boost approved by the Wage Stabilization board confronts an industry—or, in some cases, an individual firm—with financial hardship, OPA must "promptly provide" higher price ceilings.

For industries or companies which will not be in full production for some time, the immediate price increase must be large enough to assure a full year's profit equal to its average earnings during a pre-war base period. In virtually all industries this base is 1936-39.

No Necessity For Delay President Truman said speedier price relief is necessary because "many companies, squeezed between...

Paves Way For Pay Boosts In Industry; Bowles In Charge

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Official Washington confidently expected a steel strike settlement today as a swift follow-up to President Truman's higher wage-price line and his choice of Chester Bowles to hold it. The new reconversion formula, a White House spokesman said, supplies the price basis for ending the walkout of 750,000 CIO-United Steelworkers.

Aides said that when Mr. Truman announced the policy change late last night, he also had counted on making a simultaneous announcement that the steel strike was over. He was disappointed by U. S. Steel and CIO negotiators who were reported still short of bridging the final gap.

The President said the new policy calls for these broad changes in the nation's wage-price approach:

1. Wage increases must be approved by the National Wage Stabilization board. And this board must see that they do not exceed the pattern of pay boosts in an industry of area since V-J day—about 16 to 18 per cent.

2. Higher price ceilings will be granted manufacturers immediately—instead of after six months—to insure profitable operation after an approved wage increase is granted.

Bowles Lays Down Rules 3. OPA Administrator Bowles becomes director of the re-created Office of Economic Stabilization and is charged with laying down the specific rules for the new policy.

4. Paul A. Porter, chairman of the Federal Communications commission and a staunch hold-the-line man, steps into Bowles' OPA shoes.

5. The wartime OES is revived to replace the Office of Stabilization Administration previously headed by John C. Collet. As its boss, Bowles has a wider authority than Collet who still is in the office—and under the supervision of Reconstruction Director John W. Snyder, with whom he tangled on pricing policy. Collet plans to return to his Missouri federal judgeship.

The President also appealed for firm holding of the new and higher line to avoid "the misery and danger of inflation."

He said in a statement: "Production is our salvation. Production is the basis of high wages living for us all. Production will do away with the necessity for government controls."

Some congressional members saw inflationary threats. Others thought the trend could be controlled.

"Of course this is in the direction of inflation," Sen. Brewster (R-Me.) told a reporter: "Everyone will have to move in now on a wage increase."

Sen. Lucas (D-Ill.) held that any wage and price increase "might be somewhat inflationary" but believed it was necessary.

He termed it the worst quake ever recorded here.

Tough On Gnats

With the explanation that Harold L. Ickes, whose hobby was lambasting his political opponents, frequently was lambasted by us, his resignation over the Pauley affair is a bad break for the public. This is not word-eating, but an effort to appraise what Mr. Ickes' resignation means.

He asserts he is being forced out of the Truman cabinet because the "political gnats in Washington are already swarming". The issue between him and his opponents in the Pauley affair was his personal honesty versus inside party politics. In the showdown, Mr. Ickes was left high and dry by his political superior, President Truman. Party politics got the nod. Mr. Ickes got the shoulder.

The American people are left wondering what they are going to get.

Mr. Ickes is leaving the government under circumstances that can't be shrugged off. His reputation for public honesty is so much better established than the reputations of the men who have shouldered him out of public life that they have put themselves on the spot.

Furthermore, his detailed account of the curious way in which the Pauley appointment was handled by President Truman stirs the suspicion that the chief executive may be having "gnat trouble" himself. The appointment may have been good inside party politics, but it has made a bad public impression—and Mr. Truman is the one getting stung for that.

Or perhaps it is the public that is getting stung. Mr. Ickes has raised the question. Someone else will have to answer it.

No one in Washington at this time could have raised it so pointedly. Mr. Ickes and Henry Wallace are all that's left at the cabinet level of the great what-was-it called the New Deal. Mr. Ickes is a trustee of whatever is left of the confidence the New Deal inspired in its loyal following. His word may be a more weight at the polls than the word of the Hannegans and Pauleys who are now master-minding for the Democratic coalition.

Mr. Ickes was never an organization Democrat, and that seems to be where the fight started. He is suspicious of organization Democrats and organization Republicans. As a tip-sportin' political maverick, he refused to be corrupted, remembering—and in public—what happened a generation ago when organization Republicans corralled Albert B. Fall, one of his predecessors as secretary of the interior. At 71 (he will be 72 next March 15) Mr. Ickes is too old to go to jail.

No organization Democrat with hopes for a future would have dared to cause the furor Mr. Ickes has caused. But his political future is behind him.

As he leaves the cabinet, he takes a lot of public gratitude with him for his administration of the Department of Interior. He frequently was a pain in the neck for the insults that rolled off his tongue, but that was one of his jobs in an administration that believed in smearing the opposition. He merely did what he was expected to do as one of the leading lights of the coalition held together by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

But at the end of the line a new coalition trying to pull itself together under Harry Truman expected Mr. Ickes to do more than was in his contract. No one knows how this thing will turn out eventually, but the swarming gnats know they worked out on a mighty tough customer.

In Quarantine

The quarantine sign tacked on Argentina by the State Department is going to start the biggest neighborhood rumpus ever seen in the new world.

It is the climax of a series of actions by the United States to spike the guns of Nazism in this hemisphere before they can be fired.

All the actions have been taken under the Monroe Doctrine, which warned old world governments as long ago as 1820 that the United States "should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

The State Department has found strong evidence that Hitler's Germany tried to extend its system to Argentina. It has tried to stop the growth of a system in Argentina that threatens to perpetuate Hitlerism in the western hemisphere. It has had no success. Argentina has been terrorized and manipulated by its dictator. The dictator is now going through the motions of an election. The quarantine put on by the United States probably will not cramp his style, but it will tell his followers, his opponents, and other Latin American governments that no one is being fooled.

Two dictators, Francisco Franco in Spain and Juan Peron of Argentina, stand accused by other governments of unfitness for office. Franco is under quarantine by the United Nations. Peron is under quarantine by the United States. It is an important test of the theory that peace-loving states can protect themselves by staying together when faced with a common danger. If Franco and Peron are still on hand a year from now, the theory will be shattered.

The Many And The Few

It is obvious that a minute fraction of the country's population, on strike in a major industry, has a noticeable influence on the national economy. Therein lies much of organized labor's strength, when wisely used. And that strength has been used, wisely and unwisely, with growing frequency since the war ended. In New York City recently, a minute fraction of that city's population walked out in a strike which, though it did not have a marked national effect, was an interesting illustration of how greatly the many may be dependent on the few.

The strikers were the 3500 men who operate tugboats which bring many of New York's necessities of life from truck terminals and railroad yards in New Jersey. They constitute about five hundredths of 1 per cent of the city's population.

President Truman ordered government seizure of the tugboat industry and asked that the strikers return to their jobs. The men held a mass meeting to consider the request. More than 2000 attended, but only 710 voted. Of these, 259 voted to return and 451 elected to stay out.

Thus, by a vote of six thousandths of 1 per cent of New York's population, a strike was continued which immediately affected 80 per cent of the city's fuel supply and 50 per cent of its food, including most of its fresh fruits and vegetables.

The strike was a result of stalled negotiations between a local of the United Maritime Division, International Longshoremen's Association (AFL) and tugboat operators. The union asked wage increases ranging from 28 to 100 per cent. The operators were offering about 7 per cent.

The strike-affected public is generally indifferent to the issues involved. Whatever the merits of the strikers' case, the dominant tendency among the inconvenienced is to blame the strikers. To strike against public health and safety, and to persist in that strike is to handle a legitimate weapon recklessly.

It should be said for the striking union's leaders that they asked the men to heed the President's request. But they bowed to the wishes of a handful of their membership who did not approach a quorum of the meeting or the membership.

Labor leaders howl at restrictive legislation. But when growing power seems to be accompanied by a shrinking sense of public responsibility, they can't expect anything else—as the liberal wing of "big business" has told them out of sad experience.

Use of Sulfonamide Drugs In Rheumatic Fever

By HERMAN N. FUNDESEN, M.D.

IT IS no secret that many thousands of soldiers and sailors in the past three years have become acutely ill of rheumatic fever and, of course, there are many more persons in the civilian population who suffer from this disorder.

In fact, according to Dr. William H. Bunn of Ohio, it is estimated that there are about 400,000 to 500,000 cases of rheumatic heart disease in the United States at the present time. Obviously, then, there is great need that everything possible be done to prevent and relieve this disorder.

Cause Unknown

The exact cause of rheumatic fever is still not known. Probably it is due to infection with a virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings of a porcelain filter. It also seems certain that infections of the nose and throat with streptococcus germs of a certain type known as hemolytic streptococci precedes the actual onset of an attack of rheumatic fever by several days or longer.

It is thought that, perhaps, crowding together of large groups of people may be a factor in the spread of the disease. Heredity apparently does not play much of a part since it was found that in more than two-thirds of the soldiers and sailors who developed the disease there was no history of the disorder in the families.

Preventive Measures

What, then, can be done to prevent rheumatic fever in the first place? First, it has been recently found that giving the sulfonamide drugs may be helpful. There are studies to indicate that the number of cases of streptococcal infection of the nose and throat is reduced when the sulfonamide drugs are given to prevent them. Dr. Bunn also suggests that rheumatic fever may be a reportable disease.

Then, if a number of cases should occur in any area, all these closely exposed to the infection might be given the sulfonamide preparations under the directions of the doctor to keep an attack of rheumatic fever from developing.

Furthermore, once a person develops such a sore throat due to streptococcus germs, he should be examined frequently by the doctor following the infection so that should rheumatic fever develop it may be promptly discovered and treated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. S. Q.: My daughter, thirty-four years old, was told that she had a heart murmur. What is a murmur? Is it bad?

Answer: A heart murmur is an abnormal sound produced during the beating of the heart. Whether the murmur is serious depends upon the extent of the damage to the heart. A physician can decide this after careful examination, including an X-ray of the heart and an electrical tracing of the heart beat, known as an electrocardiogram.

K. L. R.: After I reached the age of forty-five, I developed scaly patches on my knees.

Answer: Scaly patches on the knees might be due to a condition known as psoriasis. However, since skin rashes may come from a variety of causes, it would be a good idea for you to consult a skin specialist so that a definite diagnosis can be made.

Favor One Office To Weigh Military Intelligence Facts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Out of 11,812 pages of Pearl Harbor testimony emerged at least one thing today on which Republicans and Democrats agreed—a proposal that a single office weigh all military intelligence.

The proposal, made by a lawyer-soldier witness, Henry C. Clausen of San Francisco, was received enthusiastically by all the congressional committee members present.

Clausen, who as a lieutenant colonel conducted a Pearl Harbor inquiry for the War department, said he found "jealousy between the services" hampering intelligence work not only in 1941 but right down to the end of the war.

He told of what he called the navy "short-changing" the army on the Japanese messages it intercepted and decoded in Manila, Hawaii and Washington.

And he recommended something which apparently would go farther than the action already taken by President Truman in setting up a United States intelligence agency to function for the War, Navy and State departments.

This agency is charged with collecting information—a task which includes spying, in a plain word.

Clausen proposed that a single authority also interpret for the military men what the information means and have the responsibility for seeing that they get it.

Clausen testified at a sparsely-attended night session as the committee drove to finish up before the Friday deadline set to end the hearings.

Unsuitable War Materials Put On Sale At Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15.—More than $5,000,000 worth of material, in the raw, unfinished and finished states, including steel, fabric and wood used in connection with war contracts by B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, has been declared unsuitable for military use and is for sale by the government.

The Cleveland ordinance district, which has been authorized to act as disposal agent, said today approximately 4,500 items are involved, including a few dies, jigs and fixtures. Bids on the first offerings of the raw material will be opened Feb. 28.

Opportunities to buy to advantage are found daily in The News classified advertising columns.

WICHITA, Kas., Feb. 15. — William J. Lanning, 51, a rent examiner for the Office of Price Administration, was in the hospital today with a mangled right hand and facial injuries suffered when a small bomb, concealed in a comic Valentine, exploded in his hands yesterday.

FELLOWSHIP PLAN FOR CHURCH URGED

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15. — The Methodist council of cities was told yesterday that a major job of every city church is that "of breaking down the walls of loneliness that rise so high."

Dr. William E. Clark, pastor of City church of Gary, Ind., declared that the church in the industrial city must "highlight its fellowship else many will never darken its doors but wander in bleak loneliness."

Pastors and other church officials, he said, should reach out to various community organizations "with a helping hand."

"People who would not of themselves come to see what is behind the church doors, will come when they find a helping hand and an understanding heart given to them outside those doors," Dr. Clark asserted. "The early churches were primarily fellowships. The present day church must also be one."

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of Christ Memorial church of New York City, told the council last night that the American city is the best laboratory for working out formulas of world fellowship.

Heved such a movement could be held in restraint.

The measure of wage control provided was expected to arouse protest from labor leaders.

The executive order provides that an employer who grants an increase without approval waives permanently his right to seek a price boost to cover the wage rise.

Industry was assured the 1936-39 level of average earnings, which it now enjoys, for the 12 months following any approved wage increase.

OPA need do no more at the outset than see that the industry runs at a profit, if it is likely that greater output will lower costs so that over a year's time the pre-war profit pattern will be matched.

This meant that OPA had won a point in the planning of the new policy—the point that increased productivity would lower costs in most cases so that initial price boosts could be held down, or as Mr. Truman put it “conservatively appraised.”

Wage increases which are small or otherwise unlikely to have inflationary results may be exempted by Bowles from government approval.

Bowles Pledges Support

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross emphasized that Bowles was among those who pledged his full support.

Until the last minute there were reports that Bowles was going out instead of up in the government.

Reviewing the previous wage-price policy, under which labor and management were set free to bargain wage boosts without price relief, Mr. Truman noted that while thousands of adjustments had been made “collective bargaining has broken down in many important situations.”

The new program, Mr. Truman said, is not to be construed as permitting “indiscriminate wage increases.” Bowles will decide which types of increases will need no wage stabilization board approval, and the President said he expected these cases to be numerous.

Finally, Mr. Truman called on congress for four pieces of anti-inflation legislation—extension of the price control act without change, extension of subsidies for another year, enactment of the housing bill to put price ceilings on housing, and extension of the second War Powers act.

Columbiana Power Off After Severe Windstorm

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 15.—Parts of the south end of town were without electric current for a short time yesterday, and the rural area of the south most of the day, due to windstorm damage to a high tension line east of town. City Electrician Russell Royer, with his helpers, and the Ohio Edison son force spent the day making repairs.

The high tension line just east of town transmits current north from the Ohio river power plant at Toronto. The wires were carried down and fell across the wires of the Columbiana municipal distribution system, burning them in two. The Ohio Edison transmits current over the city-owned distribution system for the entire municipality and a large rural area.

The policy provides that any wage increase not approved by the government “shall constitute a waiver of the right of the employer to use such increase, at any time during the continuation of the stabilization laws, as basis for seeking an increase in price or rent ceilings.”

Under the old policy, an employer who did not bother to get approval was ineligible for price relief, but he could come back to the government at any time and apply for an okay of the wage increase, and if then approved, it could be used as the basis of a price adjustment—after a six month wait.

Chester Bowles, the new stabilization boss, was given authority to prohibit a wage increase altogether, under certain circumstances, if he deems “such action necessary to prevent wage or salary increases inconsistent with the purposes of the stabilization laws.”

MACKENZIE'S
Column

BY DE WITT MACKENZIE
AP World Traveler

THE HAGUE, Feb. 15.—Prime Minister Schermerhorn has paid this column the compliment of asking it to perform a friendly mission for Holland by emphasizing to America his assurances that not only his government but the people of the Netherlands as a whole are anxious to see Indonesia gain self government and within a fixed period freedom of choice for its own status.

This is by way of being a historic request, for it is indeed a striking recognition of the great politico-social tide which is sweeping our world. It isn't often given a reporter of foreign affairs—even if he has been dealing with statesmen for a generation, as has your correspondent—to hear the prime minister of an empire thus emphasize the mother country's desire to see one of her most cherished possessions become a sovereign state.

Dr. Schermerhorn has a wide reputation for being a humanitarian. He abandoned a college professorship to enter politics. During the war he led a free Dutch underground movement and the Germans had him in a concentration camp for a couple of years. Recently he joined the socialist labor party. Still in his sunny years, he is a man of strong personality and direct speech.

The prime minister's request came at the end of an interview on the general welfare of Holland.

"If you want to perform a good-will mission for Holland," he said, "you can do so by making her position regarding Indonesia clear to America. I am afraid there is a misunderstanding in your country, and the good opinion of our friends in the United States means much to us. I should like to get across the message that not only has the Netherlands government pledged itself to the final independence of Indonesia but that the majority of the people of Holland are behind the government in this action."

It was more than a request. The prime minister's earnestness made it a plea for better understanding.

Earlier Dr. Schermerhorn had spoken in warm terms of the Indonesians and of their qualifications for independence. He has visited them several times.

"They are a fine and capable people," he said, "and are just as entitled to sovereignty as are the Philippines."

We spoke of the government's announcement last Sunday, offering to establish a "commonwealth of Indonesia."

The prime minister agreed with my suggestion that this plan appeared to contemplate a structure similar to that of the British commonwealth, in which the dominions are independent but voluntarily remain within the partnership.

I asked him if he thought a settlement would be reached between his government and the Indonesians. He nodded but then qualified his nod in this way: "It certainly provides ground for negotiation. Sjahrir (prime minister of the unrecognized Indonesian republic) is a clever man and he is reasonable. He will recognize this as the basis for discussions."

"Which is the most important leg of a three-legged stool?"

Andrew Carnegie asked that question when someone wanted to know what he considered most important in industry... labor, capital or brains. It's the question we'd probably ask you if you wanted to know what we considered most important in a man's ensemble... his suit, tie or shirt. You see, it takes all three, plus a few other smart accessories, to achieve the proper ensemble.

You may select a fine, correctly styled suit that fits perfectly, but without the right accessories the proper ensemble is impossible. So it's good judgment to come to a store like ours, where the salesmen are men's wear specialists who know color harmony as well as they know style, fit, tailoring, and fabrics. Drop in sometime, even if it's only for expert advice on what to wear with what.

Oilers, Goodrich Register 5th Straight Win

Stage Set For Crucial Fray On Memorial Court Tonight; City Cab, Ohio Grill Score

The stage was set for tonight's Sinclair-Goodrich meeting last night at the Memorial building as both teams posted their fifth consecutive second-round win without a defeat—Sinclair drubbing the Zone Cab by a decisive 41-26 margin and Goodrich nailing Greenford, 54-21.

Goodrich stormed into a 12-3 first quarter edge and rolled in high gear the rest of the way to lace the Zone Cab.

Tommy Nedelka set the pace with a 14 point total while Bob Jefferies and Gordy Scullion added 22 markers between them to the Goodrich attack.

The Greenford five was completely outclassed by the all-around smooth floorwork and the superior accuracy of the locals and were never in the game after the first two minutes of play.

The Sinclair Oilers got off to a slow start in their contest with a rough and ready Zone Cab combine but made up for their lackadaisical first half brand of play in the last two quarters, outscoring their foes, 29-18.

Carl Capel and Dick Greene sparked the Oilers with 10 and nine points respectively while Don Rice tossed in nine for the losers.

The Oilers' ever-smooth pass-work stood them in good stead throughout the contest but their accuracy from the floor left much to be desired especially in the first half. Their work from the foul line showed much improvement, however.

The win may have proved a costly one for the Sinclair passers, however since Ray "Goose" McGaffick, team sparkplug and scoring ace, suffered an injured ankle early in the third period and was forced to retire from the game.

Whether he will be able to appear against Goodrich tonight is still in question.

The City Cab came from behind in the last 90 seconds of play on Jack Hickling's fielder and free throw to register a 25-24 win over the Legion in a hotly-fought battle which saw words and elbows fly from time to time.

The two teams were tied up at the end of one period of play 10-10, and the Legion moved into a three-point lead just before the intermission which held out until the final minutes of play.

Hickling and Jim Rogers were the mainstays for the winners with seven tallies each while Johnny Pukalski and Phil Cozad led the way for the vets with nine and eight points. Pukalski scored four times from the field, three of them on beautifully arched left handed tosses.

Ohio Grill Hard-Pressed

The Ohio Grill was hard pressed for three quarters against the vastly-improved West Side outfit before winning out, 34-20.

Definitely on the short end where height was concerned, the West Siders still managed to control the backboards against the towering Grills and made things plenty hot throughout the game.

Bob "Doggie" Scullion paced his team to its fourth win with a 10 point spree while John "Ham" Girscht flipped in eight for the West Side.

SAY, MR. FARMER!

Are you still waiting for that new tractor? Do you have hopes of getting it in time? If you have any doubts at all, we have the means to end all your worries, and to make your farming more than ever a pleasure.

If you have not already seen or heard of the wonders of the new UNIVERSAL JEEP, then call us immediately for a demonstration, and get the surprise of your life when you see the miracles it will perform; not just a toy, but a vehicle that will do more work than the average tractor, and still do work as a pick-up truck. Think of it: one unit doing the work of two, and at nearly the same cost as one.

Now is the time to call us for your demonstration. We can deliver within two weeks after your order is placed. Don't hesitate to ask for a demonstration; it is in no way binding. We are certain you will want the Universal Jeep on your farm once you have seen it perform.
